Father Peter's Column

The scriptures this weekend celebrate hopes and ideals, particularly for marriage. We can approach marriage in many different ways: the equal responsibilities and rights of husbands and wives; the obligations of responsible parenthood –to name two of the topics related to marriage. Hopes and ideals, however, are always more appropriate matter for meditation than difficulties and obligations.

Hopes and ideals as they are explained in the scriptures this weekend are also appropriate meditations for vocational calls, married life, priesthood, religious life, and committed single life, all of us and our baptismal call to holiness.

“There is nothing colder than a Christian who does not see to save others.”
~St. John Chrysostom
